

WASHINGTON, D. C., SUNDAY, JANUARY 2, 1916.

New Year Dawns on Social Changes

By MILDRED MARSHALL KOONCE.

THE New Year dawned yesterday on a world of fashion and society at play. The cumulative events of the week assumed a dizzying momentum on New Year's Eve when matron and bud, college youth and grave official, danced the old year out at one of the gay functions which marked the season's close in fashionable circles. There were prolonged dinner parties and abbreviated suppers, balls and "just dances," and the hotels provided gay supper dansants for those who preferred the more public spirit of celebration. So the old year received a splendid ovation when it departed to join the cycle of past centuries; joy and sorrow, pleasure and suffering, were equalized for the interval and the world pledged the New Year in the glass of eternal hope.

To one in the mood for social reminiscence, the season of 1915 offers a magnificent study of the intricacies of Fate and Fortune, and the strangeness of human happenings. There have been many changes in society at the Capital since the last New Year was ushered in. The White House is open to festivities once more; a new and charming chateaufort presides there. Two adorable children, little Miss Ellen Wilson McAdoo, and small Francis Sayre can claim the Executive Mansion as their birthplace. The Diplomatic Corps has witnessed pronounced changes; has received interesting additions and suffered the departure of interesting members. The shifting relations between European countries have widened the social chasm between the embassies at Washington and caused to be omitted some of the brilliant functions which formerly distinguished the Washington season. The diplomatic breakfast, which was tendered by the Secretary of State in the old days, was omitted yesterday, and two diplomatic receptions at the White House indicate the necessity of observing wartime diplomatic relations.

The Cabinet has changed slightly, too, with Mr. Robert Lansing taking over the portfolio of state and Mrs. Lansing directing an elaborate social program with a splendid charm and ability difficult to equal. The Congressional set has undergone the usual revolution attendant upon the convening of a new Congress. There are interesting new members and their families for whose social proclivities Washington expects much, and there are many returned favorites whose accomplishments are widely renowned.

The army and navy circle represents the usual quota of military and naval changes. Their ranks are depleted and reinforced with unceasing regularity. Cupid has been active too, and many pretty new brides are spending their first season as army and navy matrons at the Capital. The residential contingent is perhaps more constant than any other. There are few vacancies left by travelers, for if they cannot winter in Europe, Washingtonians are frank to admit the superiority of their native city as a residence for the chilly months.

In the younger set, changes of a year are even more apparent. School girls with braided hair and youthful giggles are suddenly become debutantes, fêted and wonderfully lovely to look upon. The prep school boy of last year is a society beau with worldly poise and an engagement book of gigantic proportions. The tea dance which flourished superbly a year ago, is dying, and bandage-making and knitting for the Belgians have gone down into the history of lost causes. Society has been sweetened and purified with new influences and there are no longer entertainments for the sake of rivalry and social prestige, but for the sake of hospitality and quiet enjoyment. A new spirit has invested the social life of the entire country and the Capital, as the standardizing influence, has taken its position for sanity, repression, and simple, wholesome pleasure. There is no longer need to "ring out the false and ring in the true," for social jealousies and pettiness, extravagance and display, received a curative impulse long before the "new sun rose bringing the new year."

Secretary Tumulty announced yesterday that the number already listed for the reception to be held at the White House on January 2, had attained proportions that it had become necessary to close the lists. Any additions would seriously endanger the comfort of the guests and no additions will be made.

President Wilson's first appearance at a ball in the National Capital will be seen by those attending the annual charity dance under the auspices of the Southern Relief Society on the evening of January 2. The President and his bride have accepted an invitation to use a box on that occasion, and the notable assemblage at the charity event, which society patronizes, will accord the President and Mrs. Wilson a cordial appreciation of their interest in the relief work it promotes.

When President Wilson was inaugurated he dispensed with the customary inaugural ball and therefore disappointed Washingtonians and visitors. Affairs of State and the health of the first Mrs. Wilson precluded the President's attendance upon social affairs of this kind during the first two years of his administration.

The President and the new Mrs. Wilson, however, are acquainted with the charitable object of the annual ball of the Southern Relief Society and will be box holders at the dance four weeks hence. Others who have taken boxes include the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, Senator and Mrs. Shields, Representative and Mrs. Thomas B. Dunn, Mrs. Francis Moran, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Bates Warren, Mrs. Charles Grayson Dulles, Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, Mrs. Eleanor Black, of New York; Miss Mary Temple, Mrs. E. W. Cole and Mrs. Delos Blodgett.

The committee in charge, headed by Mrs. Claude Swanson, wife of Senator Swanson, have disposed of most of the boxes.

The advance sale of tickets to the ball, which is a society event producing annually a goodly sum for charity, is also progressing rapidly, and hundreds of persons prominent in the social and official life of Washington and nearby cities will attend.

The Southern Relief Society's committee on arrangements for the ball comprises Mrs. Swanson, Mrs. Francis Chisholm, Mrs. Arthur Lein, Mrs. Bates Warren, Mrs. L. M. Quirillo, Mrs. Theodore Tiller, Mr. C. C. Calhoun, treasurer, and Mr. Horace Westcott, chairman of the floor committee.

In accordance with its annual custom, the El Dorado Club, Incorporated, gave the third New Year's watch party on Friday evening. The affair was held at the home of the retiring president, Mr. John P. Eckert, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Eckert, acting as host and hostess. Several attractions featured the evening's entertainment. Mr. Charles Agnew and Miss M. Riley gave an exhibition of chess which won the hearty applause of the audience. The El Dorado Club quartet rendered several selections. Dancing and the playing of games were the chief forms of amusement. Promptly at midnight, all the members and their guests were invited to the street armed with every known device of noise makers and marched through the streets of Chevy Chase, welcoming the New Year.

The new officers elected were: Leonard Cooper, president; Charles Nickols, vice president; Leopold V. Freudberg, secretary, and R. E. Glessner, treasurer. John Costello was made chairman of the entertainment committee. War and peace was the theme of the moved into their new home at 1411 G street, occupying there the whole of the third floor.

Mrs. Charles Ray Dean, 1904 Twenty-third street, will be at home Saturdays during the season.

A surprise party for Miss Florence Caplan, of St. Michael's, Md., the house guest of Mrs. Rose Davis, was given last Wednesday evening, about twenty young people attending. The decorations of the home were in pink and the favors were small models of the Buick automobile.

The Decimus entertained its friends and members last Thursday evening at the Masonic Temple, Brookland, D. C., at a dance, one of the most delightful of the holiday season. The hall was a mass of color and beauty and was brilliantly decorated with Christmas greens and clusters of roses, carnations, and lilies. The walls were tastefully draped with flags and the whole artistic effect enhanced by a changing system of colored lights. A light feature of the decorative scheme was the use of the club seal in gold and blue, these being hung between the windows with a large eight-foot seal at the upper end of the hall, flanked by masses of holly.

The dance was chaperoned by Mrs. W. Wallace Naim, Mrs. Charles E. Moister, Mrs. Millard J. Holmes, and Mrs. John T. Williams.

The members of the club, who were the hosts for the evening, were Messrs. Clay C. Holmes, Joseph McPhaul, Charles B. Moister, Geoffrey MacD. Naim, W. Wallace Naim, Jr., Harold O'Connell, Francis Ward, Herbert Williams, Ralph Wilson, and Morrison Barr.

Among those present were Mr. Clay Holmes and Miss Dorothy Gooch, Mr. Joseph McPhaul and Miss Virginia Lyons, Mr. Charles B. Moister and Miss Helen Haas, Mr. Wallace Naim and Miss Mae Rowe, Mr. Harold O'Connell and Miss Mary Darling, Mr. Francis Ward and Miss Anna Knight, Mr. Herbert Williams and Miss Letta Hawkins, Mr. Ralph Wilson and Miss Cymbeline Dentler, Mr. Robert Gooch and Miss Laura Remberg, Mr. Jack Bond and Miss Jean Aolster, Mr. Clyde Atwell and Miss Eleanor Washington, Mr. Robert McCright and Miss Lottie Knight, Mr. Harold Clayton and Miss Gertrude Swingle, Mr. Don Holmes and Miss Helen Viemeyer, Mr. Frank Meyers and Miss Lucy Clark, Mr. Clyde Talbert and Miss Grace Bell, Mr. Rimer Burgess and Miss Ruth Wilson, Mr. Troy Nubson and Miss Elizabeth Moister, Mr. Robert Brockman and Miss Ada Howell, Mr. Allison Chapin and Miss Margaret Barnholt, Mr. Thomas Davidson and Miss Lucy Louthan, and Messrs. Leo Lanahan, William Gwin, and David Schaeffer and ladies.

First White House Function.

The first social function at which the new mistress of the White House will appear officially as the "First Lady of the Land" will be the reception that the President is to give on the night of January 7 in honor of the delegates to the second Pan-American Scientific Congress. The President and Mrs. Wilson will not return to Washington until January 3, four days before the date of the reception.

MISS TERESA GRANDA Y PEZET, charming niece of the Minister from Peru and Mme. Pezet, who has the distinction of being the only debutante to be formally presented in the diplomatic corps this season.

Besides being the initial social event on the White House calendar it will be the first Pan-American reception ever held in the executive mansion. In times past the White House winter program usually started with a New Year's reception to which the general public was invited, this being followed at intervals by the annual diplomatic corps reception, the congressional, the army and navy and the judicial reception. Inasmuch as there will be no New Year's reception this season the public will not have an opportunity to shake the hand of the President's bride.

The number of invitations to the Pan-American reception is to be limited; for there will be about 1,500 delegates at the congress, not to mention wives and daughters, and it would be a difficult if not impossible task to receive a much larger number.

The night before the White House reception, the President will address the congress at a special session in the Pan-American Union Building.

Brilliant Holiday Ball.

Mrs. William F. Draper and Miss Margaret Draper, whose annual Christmas dance has become an established feature of Washington winter, gave one of the most beautiful dances of the season Tuesday evening at their home in K street, overlooking Farragut square. The guests, numbering nearly 300, were all young people, among whom were several of the winter's debutantes. The house was charmingly decorated with flowers.

After being received by their hostesses, the guests passed through an archway of white tulle with broad red satin ribbon, which was tied in huge bows at either side of the arch, to the ballroom. There Cupid vases, filled with long-stemmed American Beauty roses, flanked the niches between the tapestry paneled walls, and Southern amplex covered a lattice in one corner of the room, behind which a stringed orchestra played throughout the evening. Roses decorated the round tables, at which the supper was served at midnight.

Mrs. Draper wore a handsome gown of white tulle with the design of the embroidery adorning the skirt was reproduced, supplemented by long pendants. Her jewelry was a necklace and pendant of diamonds.

Miss Draper was lovely in a pompadour gown of yellow gauze striped in silver, and strewn with tiny bouquets with bands of sable as a finish.

Phi Alpha Delta Dance.

The Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity held its annual holiday dance last evening at the Chapter House, 1514 Sixteenth street. The house was very appropriately decorated for the occasion, the walls and panels being showered with holly and flowers, while brightly colored ribbon streamers extended from the center lights all corners of the room. Small fir trees and dragons adorned the corners and mantles, while a splendid Christmas tree, decorated with favors, consisting of friendship bracelets and links with the fraternity Greek letters, also added charm to the surroundings. At 11:30 o'clock a supper was served at prettily decorated tables in purple and gold, the fraternity colors. The committee in charge was Messrs. Charles E. Morganston, Jr., William A. Valk, and Frank Fuller. Among the novel features of the evening was a Spanish dance by Messrs. Ethel May Boyd, accompanied by Mr. Frederico Sineiga. The patrons were Judge Ashley Gould and Mrs. Gould, Prof. A. M. O'Donoghue and Mrs. O'Donoghue, Mr. John Doyle Carmody and Mrs. Carmody, and Prof. Jesse Adkins and Mrs. Adkins.
